

JULY 2004 'Sam' Jones

In January this year, Sam became very ill and was admitted to our hospital. Within 1 week of the first signs of illness, he had completely collapsed and had lost the use of all 4 legs. Extensive diagnostic tests were run, but the exact cause of the illness was not uncovered.

From this point on during his hospitalisation, Sam was nursed intensively and could do nothing for himself.

With strong encouragement from his family and the efforts of all the staff here, Sam finally started to improve. After more than 2 weeks, he finally regained the use of his legs and from then became steadily stronger.

Today, almost 5 months later, Sam is a happy, mobile senior dog.
